LEAKED EMAILS SHOW CLINTON AIDES CONSIDERED MOVING CA PRIMARY ELECTION — BY MATT FLEMING

Prominent Democratic strategists debated the political strategy of moving the date of California's primary election, according to hacked emails recently released by WikiLeaks. Prior to Clinton announcing her candidacy, Robby Mook and John Podesta discussed their preference to keep blue states like California late in the primary process.

Mook had been contacted by another Democratic strategist, Chris Lehane. According to the email, Lehane had called Mook about the California primary after speaking with Podesta, who had given Lehane the impression that he wanted to move the date.

Mook sought clarification, as he believed there was already a strategy in place to keep reliably Democratic states late in the primary process.

"FYI—Lehane called me about CA primary and I told him that the operating strategy is to keep blue states late (i.e. don't move CA)," Mook wrote to Podesta. "He said he was at dinner with you and was under the impression that you wanted to move it earlier. He's wondering how to proceed and I said I'd try to get us on the same page and go back with an answer. Are you ok with me saying that we both want CA to stay where it is?"

An email from March 2015, showed Mook hoping California Senate President Pro Tempore Kevin de Leon would weigh in on the timing of the primary.

"I met with Cal State Senate President. Super enthusiastic," Podesta wrote to Mook in an email with the Los Angeles Democrat's name in the subject line. "Do anything including travel to other states. Also volunteered to line up other state senators."

"Fantastic," Mook exclaimed. "Did he mention moving the primary date at all?"

Yes on Proposition 51*

Prop 51 is not a tax increase. It's the right way to repair and upgrade older schools, and relieve classroom overcrowding while protecting taxpayers from higher taxes.

Yes on Proposition 52*

Sponsored by California's 450+ hospitals, Proposition 52 guarantees that our Medi-Cal programs for seniors, children, and low-income families will continue to receive the highest level of federal health care assistance.

No on Proposition 56*

No new taxes. Stop the special interest tax grab. Wealthy special interests locked in a funding formula giving them 82% of new tax money. Only 13% to help people stop smoking.

No on Prop 62* Yes on Prop 66*

Victims' Families, Prosecutors, and Law Enforcement ask you to Mend, Not End, the Death Penalty. No on 62, Yes on 66! Keep the Death Penalty, End Frivolous Appeals.

Yes on Proposition 57*

Saves taxpayers tens of millions, keeps dangerous offenders locked up and is supported by law enforcement and crime victims.
